

Implementing Lean New Product Development

This paper takes Lean away from shop floor and customer facing practices and looks at how it may be brought into core functions of our organisations. In this instance, New Product Development.

The paper details a framework for high and low innovation organisations, and takes a realistic view of multi-project environments. It also takes into account human aspects of NPD.

Click here to download or print the document.